IEC Corporate Membership Program Member Advisory Board

Mission

The International Engineering Consortium (IEC) Member Advisory Board (MAB) is a unique membership organization of information-industry executive leaders. Its membership comprises an executive from each IEC Corporate Member organization. The MAB provides guidance and support for the industry and university service initiatives of the IEC, the leading organization of its kind in the information industry.

Executive Representative Benefits

- Unique networking opportunity with other executives on the Member Advisory Board
- Complimentary participation in IEC's Executive ComForum or other executive meeting that coincides with a Member Advisory Board meeting
- Complimentary participation in special invitation-only Executive Dinners and Executive Roundtables at IEC World Forum events
- Opportunity to catalyze the advancement of university curricula in information/communications technologies through support of the IEC University Program
- Opportunity to influence professional development of industry engineers, managers, and executives, as well as university professors and students, through supporting IEC academic activities, including GradNet, Electrical and Computer Engineering Department Heads Association (ECEDHA), and Eta Kappa Nu
- Preferred status for Advisory Board Member and Member Company to take leadership positions in IEC Forums
- Recognition within industry and academia as a leader who guides IEC program development
- Receipt of special IEC Executive Perspectives publications

Executive Representative Contribution

- Provide insights into information-industry technology trends and business issues for the IEC senior management team to keep IEC programs unique and relevant for industry and academic professionals
- Guide the development and implementation of new IEC programs and initiatives by active participation in the annual meeting of the Member Advisory Board
- Encourage executives from leading communications service providers and vendors to become Corporate Members
- Participate in periodic IEC surveys of industry technology trends

Annual Member Involvement

- Attend the Annual IEC Member Advisory Board meeting

Structure

- The chairman of the Member Advisory Board is the IEC President
- Advisory Board membership is only available to Corporate Members
- Advisory Board Members are senior executives of their organizations
